Three years after her tumultuous relationship with the handsome, bewitching Marty Osceola ends, Dina Youngblood strikes out on her first solo trip away from the Rez. A Jesus Way follower, she's determined to become a missionary to other Native Indians in Broken Bow. Perhaps, while there, she can also find a way to atone for the deep pain she caused Pastor Aaron Burning Rain, whom she rejected for Marty's love.

But as she makes her way toward Broken Bow, with only her cat, Eddie Was, as a companion, the forces of Darkness conspire against her. Is what happens next a dream, a nightmare, or reality? Dina doesn't know, but she's about to find out...

Sequel to Gray Rainbow Journey

K.B. SCHALLER

A popular conference speaker, independent journalist who contributes largely to Native publications, and a former classroom teacher, K.B. Schaller is also a published poet and painter whose works have won Best in Show and other recognitions. "Journey by the Sackcloth Moon challenges many popular perceptions of Native Americans as it further defines the angst-ridden, many-faceted characters in their struggles to 'walk in two worlds,'" Schaller says.
